Schlesinger addresses GRI seminar

In discussions about elderly people it is important to "remember that they are not as old as they used to be," Hilde Schlesinger, a clinical professor of psychiatry, said during her presentation on Hearing Loss in Adulthood sponsored by the Gallaudet Research Institute. We have come to a place in our society where the elderly have "more years to live and less reasons to live," she stated. And a part of the diminishing reason to live can be the feeling of powerlessness that often accompanies growing old.

In Schlesinger's presentation at MSSD, she drew parallels between her studies of children from disadvantaged families and deaf children and her projected studies of elderly people in nursing homes or other care institutions. At the core of her theory is the belief that language encodes certain power structures and perpetuates them. If the conversation is set up as between equals then there is autonomy and one person is talking with another. If the conversation is carrying a statement of control, then one person is talking at another, she explained. When a caretaker in an institution or family talks at a deaf child or at an adult who is developing a hearing loss the conversation fosters a sense of powerlessness.

Schlesinger is continuing her research and studies at the Center on Deafness at the University of California where she is a professor in residence in the Department of Psychiatry.

Activities set for Deaf Heritage Week

Both KDES and MSSD are celebrating Deaf Heritage Week this week, with guest speakers, displays and workshops scheduled to help students understand the history of the deaf community.

Monday, April 9, from 1 to 2:30 p.m., KDES students will host their own deaf fair in the Kendall mall area. The children will present displays created in class, hold poetry readings, stage skits and show student-developed

Lee to remain president past October

Chairman Jane Bassett Spilman announced at the final session of the March meeting of the Board of Trustees that the Board has asked Interim President Jerry C. Lee to remain longer as president of Gallaudet College and that he has agreed to do so. The Board withdrew its charge to the Presidential Search Committee to try to find a president for Gallaudet by October of 1984.

Both at the Board meeting and in a subsequent interview, Spilman stressed the Board's respect for Lee and faith in his ability to run Gallaudet at this time of very pressing challenges. She mentioned particularly the pressures of guaranteeing adequate federal funding and operating every department under tight budget constraints.

Because Lee has its full support and admiration, Spilman said, the Board "will not roll around Kendall Green as so many loose cannon balls," making management decisions or otherwise interfering in the administration of Gallaudet. At present Gallaudet requires in its president "a business brain of the first order, a Lee Iacocca kind of individual," she said. She talked of consistently asking for the impossible from Lee, wanting it done yesterday and, further, getting what was wanted. "The College is in very safe hands," she concluded.

At the Board meeting Spilman also especially commended Bob Davila, Jim Barnes and Sue Ellis for their "bulldog tenacity" related to ensuring sufficient appropriations for Gallaudet and thanked the many members of the Board who had made special contributions to the funding effort.

The Board reelected its full slate of officers with Spilman continuing to serve as chairman, James J. Hicks as vice chairman, Frank B. Sullivan as secretary and Philip M. Sprinkle as treasurer. In order to prevent any stagnation which might otherwise occur, members switched committees and joint chairmanships were established with one deaf and one hearing chair for each committee.

Collegiate faculty reviews admission requirements

In a show of hands, the collegiate faculty at its March meeting voted to "suspend for the 1983-84 and 1984-85 class of preparatory students the requirements (page 13 of the 1983-84 catalogue) for admissions from the preparatory program to the undergraduate College. The proposal prepared by Committee B, the Undergraduate Curriculum Committee, was the topic of lengthy discussion at the March 26 meeting.

Ann Davidson, dean of the Preparatory Program, stated later that this alteration "will allow students who show potential to move to the status of freshman with conditions." Davidson said that "we have some students who are showing marvelous improvement" but who can not complete all the math and English requirements as well as maintain a C average in every other course. With this suspension, the College will return to its former policy which contains the same academic standards but does not require that they be completed in one year.

There are currently 230 preparatory students at the Northwest Campus. At the end of the first semester 24 students moved into the freshman pro-

Northwest Campus undergoes some program adjustments

The School of Preparatory Studies (SPS) at the Northwest Campus underwent some program adjustments during the winter break. While prep students were on vacation, faculty and staff members at SPS were studying results of the first semester as reflected in student test scores.

As a result, students will either be promoted to the freshman class, scheduled for a second and final semester of the multi-faceted program, or scheduled for a revised spring and summer program of intensive study in English and algebra with fewer hours of assigned classes and more individual tutoring. Faculty members focused their attention on the last option during the winter break.

Students whose test results demonstrate they will not be performing at a freshman level by the end of the second semester will be shifted into this newly designed, three-semester program. Curricula will be developed that will satisfy original program objectives with the pace geared to individual students' needs.

While the faculty worked to individualize the SPS program, some staff members were involved in developing procedures manuals, redistributing and inventorying furniture and equipment and considering space problems. Others attended seminars and workshops.

The organizational chart on page three shows the school's administrative reporting structure. While they report to the dean of SPS, faculty members maintain departmental affiliation with the College proper. All staff members report to the dean of SPS directly or to her through the assistant dean for Student Affairs.

Lunch performance set

The Gallaudet Dancers will give a special performance at "Ole Jim" during lunch Tuesday, April 10. The dancers will give a preview performance of some numbers from the spring dance concert, "The Force of Dance," scheduled for April 27, 28 and 29 at Elstad Auditorium.

Library Bits & Pieces

College days

by Michael Olson

Incidents on many college and university campuses across the country have given students memories of the "good ole college days." Here on the Gallaudet campus, there have been many such incidents—some of which are recorded in the College Library Archives. Three incidents originally written by Gallaudet students are related below.

One incident is about a long-time deaf faculty member, Dr. John B. Hotchkiss, an 1869 Gallaudet graduate. Late one afternoon in 1890 as he was busy at a desk in College Hall, a student named Oliver Whildin decided to play a trick on him. The student found a rope and tied one end to the door of room 22-24 and the other end to the knob of Dr. Hotchkiss' office door. Since the doors opened into the rooms, there was no chance the trick would fail. Oliver then went to the College dining room for supper.

Later Dr. Hotchkiss looked at his pocketwatch; it was time for his supper. He neatly re-arranged his papers, put on his hat and coat and went to the door. To his dismay, the door would not open. He pulled and pulled to no avail. He hollered for help but no one heard him. Finally the old professor pulled up a chair, threw his coat ahead of him through the transom (a window above the door), worked himself up, through and out.

Dr. Hotchkiss' clothes were dirty and disheveled. He reported this incident to President Edward Miner Gallaudet. The next morning, Dr. Gallaudet called the students to assembly and showed the rope to them.

"Will the owner of this rope please stand up!" Gallaudet said. No one stood up. Dr. Gallaudet waited, his eyes searching the faces of the male students.

"Will the one who tied this rope to the door knobs of two rooms in College Hall please stand up!" he stated. Oliver Whildin stood up.

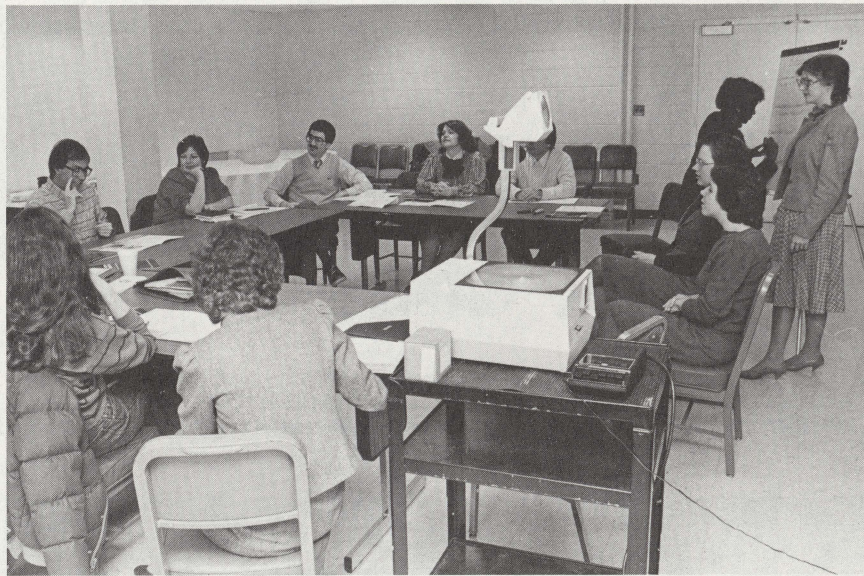

"Why didn't you answer when I called the first time?" he was asked.

Whildin replied, "I am not the owner of the rope."

Another incident involved students who disliked two professors, Dr. Amos G. Draper and Allan B. Fay, for flunking them in some courses. One Halloween Eve, the preps were instructed to collect pans, garbage pail covers, tin cans and sticks and stack them against the front door of Dr. Draper's campus house. At the same time, the students put pans of stuffed leaves inside of Professor Fay's car and pushed it out of the garage to the lawn.

When Dr. Draper felt a noise outside, he went to investigate. When he opened the door, the pans and garbage covers fell, making a loud rattling noise. He became angry and informed Dr. Gallaudet, showing him what the "spooks" had done. Dr. Gallaudet became angry. On the chapel platform the next day he scolded the students and dared them to come forward and confess their sins.

The last incident nearly caused Dr. Gallaudet to have a stroke of apoplexy when one morning Dr. Draper opened his classroom to find a cow in it. The students had spent half the night pushing and tugging the cow up the stairs to the second floor classroom. Classes were not held in the room for three days until it had been thoroughly scrubbed clean.

Mary Gawlik and Lillie Ransom of the Office of Experiential Programs Off Campus lead a discussion during the recent Camp Networking Seminar for directors of camps for deaf persons.

Camp directors attend training seminar

Directors of camps for deaf persons gathered at Ely Center last month for a training seminar designed to help improve services both to their clients and Gallaudet students who work at the camps.

The Camp Networking Seminar was sponsored by the Office of Experiential Programs Off Campus and was funded with a grant from the Strauss Foundation. Held March 8 and 9, the seminar was attended by camp directors from the Washington, D.C. area as well as directors representing camps in Barbados, Kentucky, New York and Canada.

With the theme, "What Works for You," the seminar allowed the camp directors to meet and discuss strategies they have successfully implemented. "They become stronger because of the association, by getting together and sharing experiences," explained Mary Gawlik, coordinator of Intern Programs at EPOC.

Added Lillie Ransom, coordinator of Cooperative Education at EPOC, "It enhances the services to the deaf community at large—not just to EPOC students."

Camp directors invited to the seminar work with Gallaudet students through the EPOC office. While students generally work as camp counselors, they also serve as recreation leaders, program planners and group dynamics leaders.

Topics covered during the day-long seminar March 8 included staffing concerns, communication, camp activities and resources and publicity. In-service training was provided by two Gallaudet professors: Ronald Dreher and James Fernandes. Dreher, a professor in the Department of Physical Education and Athletics, discussed training and orienting staff while Fernandes, a Communication Arts professor, discussed how attitudes influence communication.

The following day of the seminar, March 9, was spent interviewing Gallaudet students for jobs. Approximately 30 students were interviewed, and while the final decisions are pending, Ransom expects that perhaps 22 of the students will be placed in camps this summer.

The Camp Networking Seminar was the first opportunity these camp directors had to interact and share program experiences. Because EPOC feels the seminar was so successful, it plans to build on it next year, Ransom and Gawlik said.

"Ole Jim" lunch special

A luncheon special, "Easter Parade," will be held April 12 at "Ole Jim." The menu will include roast beef with gravy, rice pilaf, assorted vegetables, rolls, butter and dessert. Cost of the lunch is $4.

Sponsored R&D

Grant/contract deadlines

Provided below are application deadlines of selected federal programs that offer potential grant or contract opportunities for Kendall Green faculty, staff, and graduate students. More details on programs of interest can be obtained from the Office of Sponsored Research, x5030 (voice or TDD).

Deadline	Program
04/16/84	NIHR: Fellowships in Handicapped Research
04/27/84	ED: Rehabilitation Service Delivery
04/30/84	NIHR: Knowledge and Utilization Projects
05/01/84	HRSA: Maternal and Child Health Discretionary Grants
05/08/84	ED: Centers for Special Need Children
05/08/84	ED: Vocational Rehabilitation Services to Severely Disabled Individuals
05/21/84	NIHR: Field-Initiated Research Projects
05/21/84	ED/OSERS: New Field-Initiated Research Projects

Special Projects

The Rehabilitation Services Administration is inviting applications for new projects for fiscal year 1984 under the Program of Special Projects and Demonstrations for Providing Vocational Rehabilitation Services to Severely Disabled Individuals. Applications are due by May 8.

The purpose of this program is to support projects designed to expand or otherwise improve vocational rehabilitation services and other services for severely disabled individuals.

The Department of Education is encouraging applications which demonstrate effective ways of rehabilitating persons severely disabled by one or more of the following disabilities: (a) arthritis, (b) blindness, (c) cerebral palsy, (d) deafness, (e) epilepsy, (f) head trauma, (g) heart disease, (h) mental illness, (i) mental retardation, (j) multiple sclerosis and (k) learning disability. Approximately $2,935,000 will be available for new projects in fiscal year 1984. An estimated 25 new projects will be funded at an average cost of about $117,000.

For further information and application materials, write to the Office of Developmental Programs, Rehabilitation Services Administration, U.S. Department of Education, 400 Maryland Avenue, SW, Room 3329, Mary E. Switzer Building, Washington, DC 20202 or contact Mary V. Vest, Division of Special Projects, 732-1343.

Deadline nearing for cognition symposium

April 30 is the final registration deadline for the June 5-8 International Symposium on Cognition, Education and Deafness.

The conference fee of $110 includes four meals and the 550-page Volume of Working Papers, which includes 28 research-based papers on the various aspects of the symposium theme and descriptions of four school-based cognition improvement projects.

The special rate for students is $15 per day and $30 per day for Pre-College staff.

Late registrations are being accepted until April 30 for an added late fee of $20. For more information or a registration brochure, contact David Martin, Department of Education, Fowler Hall, x5400 (voice or TDD).

Advocacy Notes

For Your Information

by Merv Garretson

- Computer speech recognition/synthesis: Dr. James Pickett of Gallaudet College's Sensory Communication Research Laboratory recently visited Texas Instruments where he saw a demonstration of a speech recognizer/synthesizer. The SCRL will continue to monitor this technology and at the appropriate time seek funds for an evaluation program with deaf users communicating with hearing correspondents. A National Bureau of Standards (NBS) group may collaborate with Gallaudet in this study.

- ATBCB note: Previously this column mentioned that David W. Myers had completed his three-year term on the Architectural and Transportation Barriers Compliance Board. At a recent visit on the campus Myers indicated he has been reappointed.

- Parent information requested: The Institute for Family Research and Education, 760 Ostrom Avenue, Syracuse, NY 13210, requests help from parents of disabled children in the development of a book on raising a disabled child. Parents are asked to write about their children and experiences they feel were important in helping them. Write to Dr. Sol Gordon at the above address and request a questionnaire. Parents who respond will receive a complimentary copy of a Public Affairs Pamphlet, "Getting Help for the Disabled Child—Advice from Parents."

- What you should know about TDDs is a free brochure on how to select telecommunications devices. Write to the Public Information Office, National Technical Institute for the Deaf, One Lomb Memorial Drive, P.O. Box 9887, Rochester, NY 14623.

- Meetings: 1) The Conference of Educational Administrators Serving the Deaf (CEASD) meets at the Los Angeles Hilton April 11-14. The theme is "Agenda for the Future: Applications of Technology in Education and Communications for the Deaf." 2) The Council for Exceptional Children (CEC) convenes at the Convention Center, Washington, D.C., April 23-27. 3) A conference on microcomputers and the education of the deaf will be held at the Quality Inn, Austin, TX, April 23-28. 4) During the International Reading Association convention at Atlanta, May 6-10, there will be a sub-meeting on reading and the hearing impaired. 5) The National Association of the Deaf will hold its biennial convention at the Hyatt-Regency and Baltimore Convention Center near the Inner Harbor July 3-8. 6) The Alexander Graham Bell Association for the Deaf is meeting in Portland, OR, June 26-30.

- Grant Awarded: A $25,000 Rockefeller Foundation grant has been awarded to the daughter of deaf Indianapolis parents to write a book on growing up with deaf parents. Lou Ann Walker, a graduate of Harvard University and successful writer-editor, has agreed to let Harper & Row publish her book, which may come out the spring or fall of 1985.

- Changes in OSERS: In the Office of Special Education and Rehabilitation Services Gary McDaniels has resigned as director of the Office of Special Education Programs to take over family business at home. Joan Standlee, deputy assistant director of OSERS, is temporarily filling in the vacated position. Ed Sontag, deputy director at Special Education Programs, has been named director of External Affairs for OSERS. His temporary replacement is Mike Harrell, team leader for Policy Development and Planning.

- Rehabilitation Act of 1973: President Reagan has signed P.L. 98-221, a bill reauthorizing the Rehabilitation Act of 1973. The measure authorizes (but does not appropriate) state grants for vocational rehabilitation at $1.12 billion for FY 1985 and $1.2 billion for FY 1986.

Personalities

Peter Goodman is facilities coordinator for the entire College. In this position, he is responsible for the scheduling of facilities for outside organizations and for the development of a campus master calendar. He is currently finishing a master's of public administration program at Southeastern University. Before assuming his new duties, he worked as facilities coordinator for KDES.

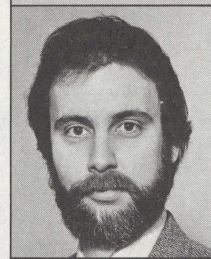

Goodman

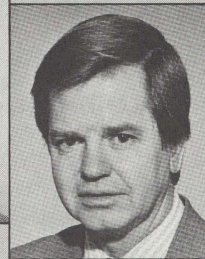

Menkis

Nancy Bloch Menkis is a career counselor working with multiply handicapped students at the Counseling and Placement Center. She worked as a work experience specialist and school counselor at MSSD before beginning work at the Counseling and Placement Center.

Frank Schwartz is an associate auditor in the Office of Business Services. He is pursuing CPA status and has a bachelor of science degree in accounting from the University of Baltimore.

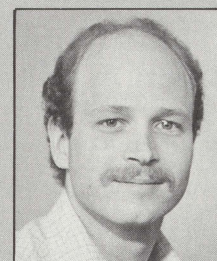

Schwartz

Sutcliffe

Ron Sutcliffe is property specialist for the College. He is responsible for the recording and monitoring of furniture and equipment transactions. He has worked at Gallaudet for 24 years and holds a bachelor of science degree from Gallaudet and a doctorate from the University of Maryland.

Boyd

Reginald Boyd is a computer operator with Computer Services. He is a 1981 graduate of Gallaudet and has a bachelor of science degree in business administration.

gram following satisfactory passage of the math and English tests. Davidson will be making recommendations for the remaining students to the Admissions Committee. These will be based on test scores and faculty evaluations of the students' performance at Northwest.

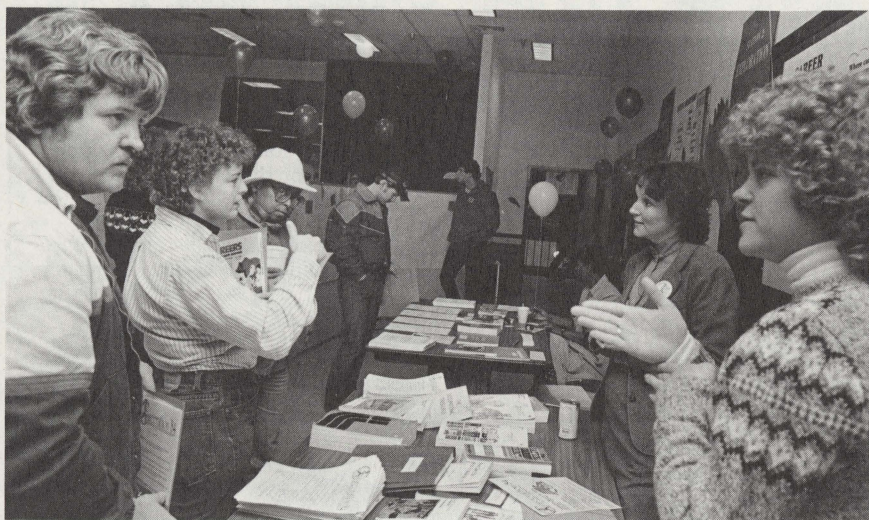

The Admissions Committee is a new continuing committee selected by Committee B and established at the request of Jerald Jordan, director of Admissions and Records. The committee will not only assist with admissions from the preparatory program but will also help in evaluations for all admissions to the undergraduate program. It is composed of the chairman of the math and English departments, the director of Admissions and two faculty members from the Collegiate faculty.

In other business, the faculty voted to establish a new major in the Business Administration Department. A bachelors' in computer information systems will replace the major in data processing that is being phased out.

The faculty also voted for an amendment to its bylaws and created a new committee on faculty compensation.

The next faculty meeting will be held April 23. All items for the agenda are due April 10.

Information booths, panel discussions and a workshop were among the highlights of Careerathon '84, the first annual campus-wide career day held on campus. Students, faculty, staff, alumni and campus visitors turned out for the day.

First campus-wide career day held

The first annual campus-wide career day was held Tuesday, March 13, with approximately 430 persons—students, faculty, staff, alumni and campus visitors—in attendance.

Careerathon '84 began with students travelling a "marathon" trail representing the career development process. Each stop along the trail paralleled a stage in career development: awareness, exploration, decision-making, preparation and entry. Videotapes, resource books, handouts and exhibits were incorporated to provide information at each stage.

Academic departments participated by staffing booths designed to assist students in exploring Gallaudet's undergraduate programs. Faculty representatives answered students' questions and provided information on requirements, curriculum and related career opportunities.

Upon completion of the Careerathon trail, students could attend any of five career panel discussions representing business, the arts, health, science and social services.

The final aspect of Careerathon '84 was a workshop focusing on interviewing skills.

The event was a Student Affairs program coordinated by the Counseling and Placement Center and the Gallaudet Student Union with the assistance of the Peer Advisor Program and the Office of Student Development.

Deaf Heritage Week activities set

career options.

MSSD students will be able to choose from five "theme" evenings, where guest speakers will focus on a different deafness-related topic. Bernard Bragg will discuss theatre of the deaf, a panel of deaf adults will talk about their careers, several groups will address the role of deaf organizations, Gallaudet Alumni/Public Relations Director Jack Gannon will present deaf history and three deaf adventurers will relate their experiences.

The two schools are organizing their programs around National Deaf Heritage Week with specific goals of increasing student awareness of cultural difference, establishing students' deaf identity and developing a better understanding of various forms of communication.
